

Raj

- Age 18
- Bachelor student, mathematics major
- just moved to Germany with his family and is still learning his ways in his new country
- has a major language barrier, misses his friends in India
- is academically gifted and hence likes attending the university
- attends German classes 3x a week and is showing improvements
- wants to have a better time tracking routine so that he can also start socializing and not lose his start at his new university
- loves watching his favorite cricket team play back in India but due to the time difference is finding it difficult to find time to spend time watching television
- wants to join the gym and be regular

Marshall

- Age 19
- Bachelor student, law student
- Was one of the best students at his school, and excelled in academics and sports
- Active member in a student organization that work for environment preservation
- Overwhelmed by the workload management at the university and his desire to protect the environment
- Loves reading books and watching documentaries
- Works to create more awareness related to environment degradation but is challenged by the tedious university submission
- Because of the hectic schedule between the university and his co-curricular activities, he's finding it difficult to maintain his fitness. This has led to him being depressed on occasions, and he eagerly wants to maintain a better time track of his activities, in order to also focus on his fitness.